SECRETARY STIMSON'S TESTIMONY

Secretary of War Stimson testimony in favor of a national service law reveals that the administration's official motive for requesting this drastic legislation is not primarily to boost production, but to boost morale in the armed services. Secretary Stimson's remarks before the senate military committee probably are typical of the testimony which other witnesses favoring national service will present. They will speak for the administration.

Their opinions will carry weight, because they are backed by official prestige. The fact remains, nevertheless, that there is room for disagreement with their point of view. The army and navy are notoriously concerned over what they speak of as home front weaknesses; they have been critical on numerous occasions. But at the same time they have expressed satisfaction with production achievements. Their position is not clear.

If the morale of the armed services needs such drastic medicine as enactment of a national service act, the people have not been apprised of that condition. They have the impression that service morale is high. To be sure, they know that fighting men and men preparing to go into battle are irritated by work stoppages and advantage-seeking at home—and their irritation is shared by most civilians—but these things have not been made impossible by national service in Great Britain and Canada and would not be made impossible by enacting a similar law here.

Until it can be shown clearly that a national service act would do more good than it would do harm and until the proposal becomes something more than a smooth maneuver to cover up for the weaknesses of the Roosevelt administration in its scatter-brained handling of labor problems, congress undoubtedly will continue to sit tight on a proposal to burn down the barn to get the horse out. The best morale medicine for the country's fighting men is adequate war production and the realization that the people back home are behind them.

ACT IV, SCENE I

It is understood, of course, that a certain amount of dramatic license must be allowed political parties in their task of holding popular attention.

But no alternate days recently, the Democrats seem to be presuming on the credulity of the public more than the circumstances justify. We refer to their search for this year's presidential candidate.

It resembles nothing quite so much as those scenes where everybody except the people on the stage know that the person being hunted for is in the window seat; the audience saw him get in there just after the curtain went up. In due time, someone will blunder in that direction, lift the lid and cry, "Ah, the lost is found. Here he is."

In view of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt eventually is going to be found, it would give the play a new twist if he'd just lift the lid on the window seat right now and say, "Here I am!" He knows as well as all other Democrats know by this time that no one else is going to come out of the woodwork.

RECOLLECTION OF 1939

The frontier settlement to be negotiated between the Russians and the Poles is not, contrary to the opinion of a minority of unrealistic realists, something of concern only to those immediately affected. Nor is it a matter which could be turned over safely to some international organization, as were similar problems after the first World war.

It should be obvious after the Danzig and Polish Corridor issues inflamed opinion and gave Hitler an excuse to start the war that territorial settlements are of general interest and should be made in the light of that fact. Great Britain and France went to war over the invasion of Poland. When they went to war, it was only a question of time before the United States went to war.

Whether the question be one of fought-over areas in Europe, mandated islands in the Pacific, or remote boundary lines in Siberia, it never is of concern only to those immediately affected. World War III, if it comes, will come soon enough without hastening its arrival by settlements which settle nothing except the certainty of more friction.

BEGINNING OF A LEGEND

Appearance in New Britain of "Bushmasters" of the 158th U. S. Infantry, trained in jungle warfare, and their success in action at Arawa may justify our badly battered faith in American ability to take to the woods in war more successfully than the Japanese.

Earlier in the war it seemed reasonable to suppose that an army of men who had played cowboy and Indian as children would have a natural advantage over Japanese in jungle fighting. Experience, however, disclosed that the first United States troops to hit the jungles had to learn everything the hard way.

The "Bushmasters" of the 158th, whose name suggests skill in jungle fighting as well as the headlines of the reptile bearing the same name, contain representatives of at least 20 tribes of American Indians, according to reports. We do not know whether Indian instinct or training should be rated first in the qualifications for jungle fighting, but it is reassuring to hear that the tradition of Daniel Boone, Kit Carson et al will not be neglected in an era when mastery of internal combustion engines seems to be more important than knowing how not to get lost in the woods.

Show me a Boy Scout and I will guarantee he is not a delinquent. Show me a delinquent and I will guarantee that he has never been a Boy Scout.—Nathan M. Ohrbach, New York businessman.

AN intriguing and eventful day, with surprise and unforeseen developments is presaged by an interesting chain of planetary aspects. While the occurrences may be of major significance, they made best be manipulated by quiet, subtle and shrewd tactics rather than aggressive or above board activities. Confidential or tacit agreements may best serve the desired, objectives. Those in high prestige, if discreetly approached, with tact and finesse, may be willing to lend their influence for promotion, responsibility and cherished honors. Cultivate such personages as well as the requisite qualifications.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of far-reaching influence on their present progress and future security. It is a time for working for advancement, favors and high honors either in public or private organizations where discretion, tact, diplomacy and honorable intrigues or strategies may prove the determining factor for success. BRICKER IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 21.—"We must repudiate governmental administrative management" if private business is to provide postwar jobs for all who wish to work, Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio believes. The candidate for the Republican presidential nomination said last night government "regulation will be necessary," but added:

"There is a vast difference between regulation and regimentation. Political ownership or management of business, of agriculture, of commerce and industry has no place in our free economy."

The governor, urging immediate adoption of specific post-war reconstruction plans to stabilize employment, declared the "job creating impulses of our economic system depend upon... confidence in the future."

"Let us see to it that our governmental institutions govern—not manage or manipulate... Let us re-establish opportunity, encourage adventure, and unshackle the productive forces of this country," he told Torch club members.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Vegetarian Theorists Vs. Meat Eaters

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THESE days of food rationing, to judge by what you hear from your neighbors and acquaintances, vegetarianism doesn't seem to have made many converts. All that comes to me is a series of squawks about not getting enough meat.

Dr. Clendenening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Vegetarians, of course, differ among themselves, and they are vegetarians for many different reasons. There are those who have moral reasons. It is wrong to slaughter animals. No argument can be brought against that. Those who aver that the eating of meat brings the danger of disease lurking in animal flesh belong to another school. As do those who believe in vegetarianism as a means of promoting horticulture and getting us all back to an agricultural existence.

Little Scientific Basis

The poisonous nature or dangers of meat as an argument hasn't much scientific basis. One has only to adduce the studies of Thomas on "The Health of a Carnivorous Race," which were the Eskimos. They live exclusively on raw meat, and contrary to belief do not get much fat or blubber. They are very healthy. High blood pressure or kidney disease is less prevalent among them than among us. Examine nearly two hundred Eskimos between the ages of 40 and 60. Thomas found the average blood pressure to be 129. They are very active and vigorous, so they must get vitamins from the meat.

Those who think that man's structure is designed for vegetar-ianism made a mistake. It would not be scientific to say that man cannot subsist on a vegetarian diet for a long time and retain his faculties, as witness Bernard Shaw. Although, according to H. G. Wells, Shaw's chests: he has taken to using vitamin tablets lately and since some of them are of animal origin he doesn't call them food. He calls them—"Those chemicals."

Abundant Protein

Of the three primary food elements (excluding the vitamins and minerals) protein is found most abundantly in animal food. Fat also. Vegetables are predominant for the carbohydrates—sugars and starches. But all vegetables contain some protein, and many contain a great deal—wheat flour, cereals, beans, peas and nuts. So we can get protein from vegetables. These vegetable proteins, however, do not act as readily in the bodily economy as animal proteins. They are not economical proteins.

So while it is possible to live and thrive on an exclusive vegetable diet, there is no support for the argument that it is a superior method of nutrition. It isn't.

But the really tough argument for the vegetarian to get over centers in the recent wartime experiments on isocaloric meals for war workers.

A set of workers were given breakfasts which were successively, for certain periods, first, almost entirely carbohydrate; second, almost entirely fat; and third, a little over half protein, a third carbohydrate and the rest fat. Then their efficiency was charted.

The carbohydrate breakfast kept them going for about two hours and they slumped and complained about hunger and weakness. The protein breakfast mixed with some carbohydrates and fat resulted in no let-up or diminution in vigor for six hours.

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED by ANNE ROWE

SYNOPSIS

Helen Turner, novelist, arrives at North Harbor, Maine, enroute to the nearby Fern Cove summer resort, where her first play is to be given a try-out, prior to its Broadway presentation. Facing the old station platform, she suddenly wishes she had accompanied her husband, Lee, on his South American business trip instead of having produced Tyler McVane's demands. An ancient jalopy finally wheezes to a stop and its kindly old driver apologizes for keeping her waiting. Old Mack explains that the Kilbourns, who manage Fern Cove had forgotten the coming of Helen and Tom Linwood, the director, was busy rehearsing this week's play. She learns that Fern Cove is jointly owned by wealthy Burns Loring, scenic designer; his sister, Mrs. Parry; and playwrights Ames Allen and George Vickery. Helen recalls that her collaborator, Stuart Ambrose, had quarreled with Alden and Vickery. She is puzzled when Old Mack drives past the trim, two-story clapboard building was merging into the landscape, offering one side to the waves, its lopsided covered porch actually overhanging the water. It looked as though it had grown out of the ground and was about to return to it.

"This here's the Fern Cove Inn," give the place its name. And over there's the old Fern Cove Inn," old Mack introduced the spot, pointing with a gnarled finger. "They call it the 'doghouse' now, account they only put people there what they don't like and don't want around." He paused and blinked up at me, obviously appraising the extent of my surprise and dismay.

"You thought I was a gabby old woman, telling you all them things of who was boss here," he accused me. "But I warn't. I meant real good by you. And if you don't know what I mean—shows you ain't to blame. I'm real sorry they put you in the doghouse. You'n that young lady actress is coming from New York for your play. Yes, sirree, I am sorry."

With that he started his blue monstrosity again, straight across the lovely ferns, on a road imperceptible to my city eyes.

Between each jolt and bump I asked myself another question: What was behind all this? Why was I being put in the 'doghouse'? And: How could I get out of this impossible situation?

The entrance of the old inn was on the land side, at the exact center. It looked dilapidated, but showed traces of former distinction in an ornate fanlight and broken stumps of Colonial pillars on the wide steps leading up to it. And the lobby behind it, taking up the whole depth of the building, was bleak and bare, stripped of everything but the built-in fixtures.

There wasn't a chair or a table. Only the desk, hugging the bend of a sagging staircase—innocent of so much as an inkwell or registration book—and the mail rack above it, with cubbyholes full of dust instead of letters.

The only attractive part of the place was the view off the cove, seen as three separate pictures through large, floor-length windows in the rear, that plainly doubled for doors too the rickety porch I had noticed from outside.

It was all dreary and desolate beyond words. And the second floor matched the first in every respect. I found out when I followed old Mack and my luggage—two suitcases, a hatbox, dressing case, and typewriter, all clamped under his grotesquely long arms—up the creaking stairs and into a wide, uncarpeted hall, traversing the house from end to end.

It had doors down both sides, and smelled musty. And it was quite dark, due to the tightly closed and shuttered windows at each end. What little air and light there were came through two open doors, opposite each other and not far from the stair landing.

In the one on the right a woman stood waiting. One of the chambermaids of the inn, I judged by her neat uniform.

She was tall and angular, about my age or a little older and looked prim and spinsterish. More like a schoolmarm than a hotel maid, I thought—correctly, as it turned out.

"That's Ada. Teaches school in winter and helps out here vacation time," old Mack introduced the woman after dumping my bags on the floor haphazardly. "She's a friend of mine. Will take care of you and tell you all you should oughter know. Me, I got to run. Got some chores to do for Mr. Loring."

I said, "How'd you do, Ada?" and Ada said, "Glad to meet you, Mrs. Turner," as a walked past her into the room which had obviously been prepared for me in great haste, and under greater difficulties.

It was an appalling example of what a hotel room can be at its worst. Mildewed wallpaper, water spots on the ceiling—so new and wet, they fairly shrieked that they dated from the last downpour—dusty screens at uncurtained windows, only the most essential furniture—early Grand Rapids cheap golden oak—and a fifty-cent kerchief lamp on the dresser as the only source of illumination. Also the bath, a dented zinc tub encased in wood.

What did it all mean—keeping me waiting at the station—sending that queer old man for me in his jalopy—banishing me into this moldering old dump at the end of no-where?

My resentment mounted again as my bewilderment wore off. I threw my bags and gloves on the bed, dropped on one of the hard chairs and asked myself angrily, and out loud: "Do they expect me to put up with this—to stay here?"

"I think they hope you won't stand for it—and leave," Ada answered me unexpectedly.

She had followed me in, was leaning against the foot of the bed and looking at me seriously. And kindly. She had a nice face, in spite of the primness, and her voice was pleasant and well modulated.

I decided I could trust her.

CHAPTER THREE

It sloped down all the way to the ragged shore of a cove that looked more like a lake than a branch of the sea, with the opposite shore quite near, and tiny islands—isolated rocks with a few trees on them—dotting its surface.

On the shore, at the very top of the cove, an unpainted two-story clapboard building was merging into the landscape, offering one side to the waves, its lopsided covered porch actually overhanging the water. It looked as though it had grown out of the ground and was about to return to it.

"This here's the Fern Cove Inn," give the place its name. And over there's the old Fern Cove Inn," old Mack introduced the spot, pointing with a gnarled finger. FSA PLANS AID FOR RETURNING VETERANS

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator, announced today demonstration offices in seven cities would be opened next week to initiate an expanded veterans employment program.

"Returning veterans must have at their disposal the total professional and technical resources of the federal government," McNutt said. "The new offices will find the veteran a job, counsel him on job training and job opportunities, and test him for job aptitudes."

McNutt made his announcement in a talk prepared for delivery to the American Legion.

"The veteran must be in a position to tap all that there is in the way of established facilities and service," he said. "He must not be obliged to wait while newly devised plans take root or new organizations go through their growing pains."

McNutt Is Opposed To Group Deferments

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower commission, asserted today he was opposed to draft deferment of any group as a class, and said "that includes farmers, who are already exempted to a certain extent."

He made the statement at the United States conference of mayors in answer to queries about possible deferment of municipal employees, particularly policemen and firemen.

Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City and other mayors said drafting of these groups was becoming a threat to municipal operation.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

—by Hal Boyle

AN AMERICAN HEAVY BOMBER BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 21 — A concert pianist in khaki is disconcerted at finding that enlisted men have a more educated taste in music than officers.

"The officers seem to go in more for boogie woogie," said Lieut. Robert Wallenborn, of the 13th air force, who used to accompany Helen Jepson and other metropolitan opera stars.

Wallenborn, whose parents live in Chicago, is 37. He enlisted 14 months ago and gave a concert last fall over the AEF station at Casablanca.

"Enlisted men appeared more interested in that type of music than the officers," he said. "At least that was my experience. Perhaps I will have to take up boogie woogie yet."

Wallenborn was encouraged by the high attendance of men in the ranks at symphony concerts given three times a week by an Italian orchestra in one town.

"The audiences have been almost 90 per cent GI," he said. "This is the first chance many of these men have had in their life to attend a real symphony concert. The fact they like it is a sign there will be post-war interest in good music back home."

There are indications that some of the Japanese are trying to escape by barge at night," Stimson said. "Several troop-laden enemy barges have been sunk by our aircraft and light naval vessels."

In New Britain, Allied troops are constantly enlarging their beach heads, the secretary reported. He said in the Cape Gloucester area 3,100 Japanese dead have been counted, against American losses of 228 killed and 694 wounded.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—An indication that Japanese resistance may be collapsing in northern New Guinea was reported yesterday Secretary of War Stimson, who said Allied troops were making steady progress throughout the Southwest Pacific.

Morgenthau Tells Bond Drive Force Big Job Lies Ahead

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, Jan. 21.—War production must go on to new peaks and everything is not "in the bag," Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the Treasury, declared last night in his first speech of the Fourth War Loan drive.

He announced that even though 1943 production was 154 per cent of the 1942 total, the goal for the coming year had been set at 180 per cent.

"There is lots of work to be done and it is going to take a lot of money," he commented.

The new War Loan is already off to a fast start, Morgenthau reported, with sales to individuals totaling $1,048,000,000 of the $5,500,000,000 goal. Of this $523,000,000 was paid for series E bonds, which sell at 75 per cent of maturity value.

The national goal including institutional sales is $14,000,000,000.

Morgenthau said a Fifth Loan would be launched in May or June.

He said despite rumors of heavy redemptions of War bonds, 93 per cent of the $25,500,000,000 worth bought since May 1, 1942, still were being held.

Fined After Accident

Metro Schmelti, 59, of R. D. 1, North Lima, was fined $5 and costs by Justice of the Peace Norman Wolfgang on a charge of failure to yield the right of way, following an accident yesterday on Route 164 near North Lima.

Schmelti drove out of the Snodes-New Middleton rd., onto Route 164 in the path of a truck, operated by Ross Westover, 26, of Elkton, the state patrol said. The truck, striking the rear of Schmelti's machine, went out of control and turned over. The driver was uninjured. Schmelti received a bruised hip.

Robert Kerr, 48, of Chicago was uninjured when his truck upset on Route 224, east of Berlin Center, yesterday afternoon.

Berlin Is Raid Weary

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 21.—Travelers from Germany say the progressive intensity of the RAF's air raids on Berlin is reflected even in the way Berliners tell each other good-night.

Early in the war they wished one another "a bombless night".

Now the expression commonly used is "Bleib Uebig," which freely translated means "Hope you survive."

BOSTON—The thief who stole a packing company truck in Boston recently either was absent-minded or suddenly became conscience-stricken. When recovered, the truck still contained 300 pounds of turkey, 200 pounds of hams, seven cases of chickens and eight of sausage. Then again maybe he was a vegetarian.

MORE NAZI PEACE OVERTURES SEEN

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — German peace feelers have been made to the British on several occasions and more are certain to be made in the future, diplomatic quarters here are convinced.

But the British government, in agreement with the United States, Russia and other United Nations, has taken and will take none of the proposals seriously until the Germans get ready for unconditional surrender.

Whether officially inspired or not, the Germans made their first peace move in May, 1941, when Rudolf Hess, then No. 2 man in the Nazi party, made his dramatic flight to the British Isles. Hess wound up in a hospital prison. The British were not interested in doing business with him.

Since that time, "peace talk" has circulated almost constantly, especially in neutral capitals. Sometimes, it is believed, the Germans put out feelers to gain general war information; sometimes they actually hope the way may be opened for a deal.

It is not considered beyond the realm of possibility that British or American individuals, operating without authority of their government, might on occasion have made direct contact with an enemy citizen.

Whether any such occurrence lay behind Moscow's recent Pravda story is problematical, but the British government categorically denied any officials had engaged in such activity.

activities which will support our proposed work expansion program. At the same time we propose, through advertisements, booklets, radio talks and films to offer our philosophy of work to all within reach.

"This condition is not peculiar to my own company, however. We have seen everywhere what can be done when the threat of war forces us to put every man and every dollar to work. Brought together by a common cause, American industry has worked miracles. The same co-operation, the same amount of work, the same kind of inventive skill and daring on the part of our engineers can also win the battle against depression and bureaucracy that will begin as soon as the peace treaties are signed.

Offers Prosperity Slogan
"I believe all industries have learned the same lessons my company has learned," Whitlock stated. "I believe that when the war is over this nation can produce more goods than it ever produced before and can keep the greatest possible number of men and women working so that there will be customers for these goods. However, no one company nor any group of companies or organizations can do the job alone. All of us who try to do it will fail if every other man and every other dollar in this country does not do the same thing.

"I therefore offer you this slogan for peacetime prosperity—'Give a man a job, put dollars to work, the free American way'."

Probe Woman's Death

found by Harry Hamilton, 15-year-old son of Herbert Hamilton, whose home Mrs. Victorson was visiting

Her hand was touching the barrel of a shotgun, the sheriff said, and she had been shot through the head.

Youngstown Kidnaping Figure To Be Paroled

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 21.—John DeMarco, one of the two men convicted 11 years ago for kidnaping James DeJute, son of a Niles contractor, is to be paroled from state penitentiary March 1, the State Pardon and Parole commission announced at Columbus.

The DeJute boy was kidnaped just a few hours after Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. was taken from his home at Hopewell, N. J. Dowell Hargraves, charged with the actual kidnaping and now serving a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary said later he kidnaped the DeJute boy "for the publicity." Publicity surrounding the Lindbergh kidnaping, however, overshadowed the DeJute case and it received little notice outside this district.

The DeJute boy, DeMarco and Hargraves were found in a house near Youngstown three days after the kidnaping.

MORE NAZI PEACE OVERTURES SEEN

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 — German peace feelers have been made to the British on several occasions and more are certain to be made in the future, diplomatic quarters here are convinced.

But the British government, in agreement with the United States, Russia and other United Nations, has taken and will take none of the proposals seriously until the Germans get ready for unconditional surrender.

Whether officially inspired or not, the Germans made their first peace move in May, 1941, when Rudolf Hess, then No. 2 man in the Nazi party, made his dramatic flight to the British Isles. Hess wound up in a hospital prison. The British were not interested in doing business with him.

Since that time, "peace talk" has circulated almost constantly, especially in neutral capitals. Sometimes it is believed, the Germans put out feelers to gain general war information; sometimes they actually hope the way may be opened for a deal.

It is not considered beyond the realm of possibility that British or American individuals, operating without authority of their government, might on occasion have made direct contact with an enemy citizen.

divities which will support our proposed work expansion program. At the same time we propose, through advertisements, booklets, radio talks and films to offer our philosophy of work to all within reach.

"This condition is not peculiar to my own company, however. We have seen everywhere what can be done when the threat of war forces us to put every man and every dollar to work. Brought together by a common cause, American industry has worked miracles. The same co-operation, the same amount of work, the same kind of inventive skill and daring on the part of our engineers can also win the battle against depression and bureaucracy that will begin as soon as the peace treaties are signed.

Offers Prosperity Slogan
"I believe all industries have learned the same lessons my company has learned," Whitlock stated. "I believe that when the war is over this nation can produce more goods than it ever produced before and can keep the greatest possible number of men and women working so that there will be customers for these goods. However, no one company nor any group of companies or organizations can do the job alone. All of us who try to do it will fail if every other man and every other dollar in this country does not do the same thing.

"I therefore offer you this slogan for peacetime prosperity—'Give a man a job, put dollars to work, the free American way'."

Probe Woman's Death

MCARTHUR, O., Jan. 21. — Mrs. Martha Victorson, attractive 34-year-old wife of a coal mine operator, was found shot to death last night in the library of a friend's home, Sheriff Earl Stuck reported today. The sheriff said the body was found by Harry Hamilton, 15-year-old son of Herbert Hamilton, whose home Mrs. Victorson was visiting.

Her hand was touching the barrel of a shotgun, the sheriff said, and she had been shot through the head.

WIFE OF DIPLOMAT DIES IN SHOOTING

Police Intensify Hunt for Mystery Woman Who Shot Mrs. Williams

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Confronted with many puzzling aspects but lacking tangible clues, police intensified their hunt today for the slayer of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, 55 year old wife of an American diplomat.

Mrs. Williams, socially prominent in Chicago, died last night, 25 hours after a mysterious, middle-aged woman, who had gained entrance to her Drake hotel apartment, fired a bullet into her head. Paralysis quickly set in and physicians were unable to operate to remove the bullet.

Police said they were pursuing their investigation along many lines, while a state's attorney official described the case as a "revenge shooting."

Two witnesses, guests at the fashionable Lake Front drive hotel, described a woman they had seen fleeing from Mrs. Williams' eighth floor suite. Their description tallied with that given police by Mrs. Williams and her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28, who herself had been fired upon by the gunman.

Lieut. Patrick Groark said today police had been asked to be on the lookout for a 62 year old woman who, he said, was wanted for questioning. He also disclosed police of Baltimore had been contacted to investigate the whereabouts of an elderly woman whose name has been mentioned in the inquiry.

Members of the Williams family, police said, were unable to advance any motives. These included her husband, who for many years was commercial attaché at the U. S. embassy in Tokyo. Williams, now in the State department in Washington, said he was certain there was no "Jap angle" to the shooting.

The War Today By DeWitt MacKenzie

Frank will have to capture the heights north of Pescara on the Adriatic. We must expect this to entail much hard fighting for the Germans have the advantage of the strong mountain positions in the center of the Italian peninsula.

The further offensive may be speeded by amphibious operations along the coasts. As a matter of fact the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Aftonbladet yesterday reported that American forces were being landed at several points on the Gulf of Gaeta, behind the German line. There has been no confirmation or denial of this.

In any event, once the Allied machine has occupied those heights beyond Frosinone and Pescara it should be in a favorable position. Then our men may achieve their ambition of making speed along the Apennine way. They will be traversing a road which has resounded to the tramping feet of armies for more than two thousand years.

Appius Claudius, censor at Rome from 312 to 308 B. C., built this immortal military highway during that period. He thought so well of his creation that he called it "The Queen of Roads"—a name which still clings, and not without merit.

Interned By Swiss

Hopkins Testifies In Letter Case As Charges Are Hurdled

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Harry Hopkins, White House confidante who has charged his name was forged to a letter relating to Wendell Wilkie's possible renomination for the presidency by the Republicans this year, today made a voluntary appearance before the grand jury investigating the letter.

Recently ill with influenza, Hopkins left his bed in naval hospital to testify in connection with the mysterious letter, currently providing the capital with a prime topic of conversation. The witness looked, far from well, but told reporters he felt "so-so."

Officials in charge of the investigation said he had not been subpoenaed.

New Charges Made

The "Hopkins letter thriller," current Washington cause celebre, blossomed into a maze of charges and countercharges today but a special assistant to the attorney general announced that the case is "very simple." He didn't elaborate.

Known facts are these: That an anti-Wendell L. Wilkie book entitled "One Man—Wendell Wilkie," was published last fall containing a letter over the name of President Roosevelt's personal adviser, Harry Hopkins, predicting Wilkie would be the 1944 Republican presidential nominee and that "good cooperation" could be promised from that quarter.

That the letter, denounced as a forgery by Hopkins who demanded and got a grand jury investigation, was addressed to Dr. Humphrey Lee, of Texas, who also denied knowledge of the letter.

That the author of the book, C. Nelson Sparks, said he got the letter from George M. Briggs, aide to Interior Secretary Ickes, "and through Briggs from Ickes."

That Ickes has denied any connection with the case and has suspended Briggs.

That Sen. Langer (R-ND) who read the letter on the senate floor, said a blotted-out word, "Alamo," was a code referring to an administration plan to support Dr. Lee for the senate against Sen. Connally, Texas Democrat.

Mid-Season Finds Salem High Quakers With .500 Average

GAME AVERAGE IS 35 POINTS

Walter Brian and Ray Wise Are Leading Scorers, Record Books Show

With the basketball season at the halfway point, statistics show the Salem Quakers with an official .500 mark in games won and lost, shooting 47 per cent from the foul line, and with an average of 35 points-per-game as compared to 36 points for their opponents. Walter Brian, towering Salem center, leads scoring with a total of 103 points and an eleven point-per-game average with Ray Wise holding second honors by virtue of his 82 points scored.

From the foul line the Quakers have outscored their opponents in six of the nine games played. Canton, Lehman, East Liverpool, and Warren being the only teams to better Salem at free throwing. The best night Salem has had from the free throw mark was in the Columbiana game when they made 80 per cent of their foul shots, completing nine of 11 free throws. The poorest evening was the Canton game, when they only managed two of 13 possibilities for a percentage of 15.

Fared Well at Columbiana

The biggest field goal spree the Quakers experienced was against the Columbiana when they bagged 19 from the floor, but they have garnered 16 goals in both the East Liverpool and Warren games to mark up their second highest number of baskets. Canton, Lehman, with their 29 baskets, made the highest number of field goals against the Quakers and ran up the highest number of points. Officially, as state ratings are compiled, the locals have won four games and lost four. In state scholastic circles the Alumni contest are not considered a part of the regular schedule. Consequently, the Quaker record does not include the defeat handed them by the Alumni, 41 to 38. Salem has defeated East, Columbiana, Minerva, and Alliance while losing to Ravenna, Canton, Lehman, East Liverpool, and Warren.

In total points opponents have fared better than Salem, tallying 329 to 313 for the Quakers. This gave the opponents an average of 36 points-per-game and Salem slightly lower with their 35 points.

Brian Is Scoring Ace

Walter Brian, making his 11th point average, has totaled 103 points on 41 field goals and 21 free throws. Brian has a 43 per cent average from the foul line. The pilot man has performed exceptionally well defensively, outscoring his man in every game but one.

Ray Wise is holding down second honors with his nine point-per-game average and a total of 82 points. Wise is leading all the Quakers from the foul line having made 18 of 32 free throws—an average of 56 per cent of his attempts. In third place is Senior "Plick" Entriaken with 49 points, and a 51 per cent of his charity throws. Entriaken has made 11 of 24 free tries and is averaging almost six points per game.

Individual records stand as follows:

MID-ATLANTIC LOOP

MOGULS WILL CONFER

EBENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 21.—Elmer Daily, president of the Mid-Atlantic and Penn State baseball leagues, said today he had invited representatives of the two circuits to meet in Pittsburgh Sunday, Jan. 30, to discuss plans for resumption of play in case war conditions change unexpectedly.

Neither league functioned last season and Daily said he doubted whether they would this "unless there is a lull in the manpower and transportation problems."

However, he added, "we want to sit down and talk things over so we can have our plans ready when conditions change for the better."

He said he had invited representatives of the following teams which comprised the Mid-Atlantic league in 1942: Erie, Charleston, Dayton, Springfield, Canton and Zanesville.

PHILADELPHIA—Eddie Gloas, 133, Philadelphia, outpointed Ruby Garcia, 137, New York, 68.

HAWAIIAN, MEXICAN HORSES MAY ENTER IN KENTUCKY DERBY

Big Race May First International Touch Since Last World War

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—It begins to look as if My Old Kentucky Home may be popping up with a brand new coat of paint for this year's Derby.

Topped off by a Hawaiian horse, already at Churchill Downs aiming at trading in his grass skirt for that necklace of roses, there are enough new acts in the script for this 70th edition of the big heat so that even an old hand like Col. Matt Winn may need a formal introduction to it.

The presence of the "Hula Hoss"—Ruth Collins' Kope Kona—plus the possibility that a Mexican delegation also may take a shot at the jackpot, give the big heat its first international touch since Omar Khayyam came over from England to pick up the marbles one world war ago.

With no one outstanding Derby candidate from last season to scare others away, even Col. Winn is looking for a big field, possibly eclipsing the 22-horse rodeo in which Reigh County "rassled" his way home in 1928.

Best-looking of the fillies is the "Children's Delight," Durazna, twice conqueror of Occupy last season.

Ohio State League Prepares Schedule

COLUMBUS, Jan. 21.—The Ohio State league is ready to grant franchises to six cities and possibly to make out its 1944 schedule of games at a meeting here next Sunday.

President Joe Donnelly reported today, adding that the Class D league's prospects were bright.

The season probably will open early in May and close Labor day or the following Sunday, Donnelly said. He listed these cities as certain members: Newark, Springfield, Zanesville, Lima, Middletown and Marion.

He returned from visiting baseball men in those cities with a report all would have major league backing, Newark by the Cincinnati Reds, Springfield by the New York Giants, Lima by the St. Louis Browns, Zanesville by the Brooklyn Dodgers, Middletown by the Boston Red Sox and Marion by either Detroit or the Philadelphia Nationals.

Revival of the Ohio state league in this face of curtailed baseball operations elsewhere because of drafting of players and travel restrictions has attracted widespread interest.

Bricker Campaign Opening Big Event Of Year to Ohio Members of Congress

By EARL BERKLEY

WASHINGTON.—The formal opening of Governor John W. Bricker's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination stands out as the most important national event of purely state interest during 1943 in the eyes of Ohio members of Congress.

Even the state's three Democratic representatives, Robert Cresser, Michael J. Kirwan and Michael A. Feighan, cheered the decision of their fellow Ohioans to forego a fourth term as governor and to become a full-fledged candidate for president.

Congress was absorbed in action on war measures, and Senators Robert A. Taft and Harold H. Burton as well as the state's house members refrained from serious attempts to push passage of domestic legislation that would be important in happier times.

The delegation went down the line in support of bills and appropriations for war. Outside the legislative halls, members and office staffs had almost fulltime jobs contacting government agencies for constituents persistent with requests for information or rationing and other war problems.

Ohioans reported their mail the heaviest of their congressional careers. Most of the letters were the kind requiring an answer because they came from perplexed citizens faced with shortages of things formerly taken for granted.

Proves Welcome Diversion
With much extra work and almost continuous sessions to attend the Ohioans welcomed the diversion of political developments.

The Bricker campaign was opened formally in the capital by the 20 Republican representatives, George H. Bender, Frances P. Bolton, Walter E. Brehm, Clarence J. Brown, Henderson H. Carson, Cliff Cleveland, Charles H. Epton, P. W. Griffiths, William E. Toss, Harry P. Jeffrey, Thomas A. Jenkins, Robert F. Jones, Earl R. Lewis, Edward O. McCowen, J. Harry McGregor, Homer A. Ramey, Ed Rowe, Frederick C. Smith, John M. Vorys and Alvin F. Weichel.

Resounding endorsement of the governor's candidacy was voted unanimously at a special meeting called by Jenkins, dean of the group. Senators Taft and Burton applauded the action.

Except for Burton, whose term does not expire in 1944, all Ohio members of Congress prepared for their own campaigns for re-election and reelection next November. Bender as well as Senator Taft will be in a statewide contest since he was elected at large.

Among the Democrats, Kirwan, ardent "New Dealer" since 1932, served notice that he is ready to run on that issue and announced he favored a fourth term for President Roosevelt.

Neither Feighan nor Cresser disclosed their sentiments, although both were described by associates as ready to back a fourth term nomination of the national convention voted it.

Democrats Optimistic
Cresser, Feighan and Kirwan foresee gains for their party in the house, contending that off-year elections won by Republicans did not reflect true sentiments of the voters.

The Republicans are just as confident, as indicated by Bender's suggestion that "it is already apparent that the trend of Republican success ushered in during the congressional elections of 1942 is certain to continue through the 1944 campaign. GOP victories in governorships north of the solid south, coupled with noticeable movement of independent voters toughest job was taxes, on which he labored incessantly with other members of the ways and means committee. He also served as chairman of the Republican food study committee and found time to meet every month or so with fellow Republicans from Ohio.

Bender gained wide attention with his proposal to create a cabinet post of secretary of aviation. He was a leader among advocates of legislation to make it easy for soldiers to vote in next year's election.

Brehm and Lewis continued their agitation for post-war development of southeastern Ohio's natural resources about which Brehm talked with President Roosevelt. Brown opposed severe gasoline rationing in the middlewest.

Carson mentioned often that one of his urgent jobs was handling inquiries from citizens for information on wartime regulations, but he praised the cooperation of government officials.

Hits Farm Programs
Cleveland continued his criticism of administration farm policies and led in organization of the drive-for-action committee which objected to recesses while important legislation was in the hoppers.

Cincinnati's congressmen, Elston and Hess, were occupied with war production and other problems of their busy area. Griffiths won membership on the flood control committee where he wants to foster legislation to strengthen flood defenses after the war.

Jeffrey, likewise from a war production center, found time to introduce and win passage of his resolution commemorating the anniversary of the first airplane flight of Dayton's Wright brothers. Senator Taft sponsored the resolution in the senate.

A foot injury kept Jones in the hospital for several weeks, but this did not prevent him from continuing his demands for curtailment of non-war spending. He is a member of the appropriations committee.

McCowen attended almost every session of the house whether the debate was dull or spirited.

McGregor had two operations, one in February, another in December, but he kept in close touch with his district. He sent at least two questionnaires to constituents for their views on legislation.

Ramey and Rowe interested themselves in efforts to win greater recognition for first term representatives. They contended new members were entitled to membership on important committees.

Smith called again for readjustment of the country's financial program, contending current policies might lead to debt repudiation and bankruptcy.

In the past 30 years, more than 65,000,000 acres were allotted by the Mexican government to 2,000,000 small farmers.
